Mother of COVID Hospital Protocol Victim: 'He Drove There and Left in a Body Bag'

In December 2020, William Donald Judah developed COVID-19. On Jan. 2, 2021, when his symptoms worsened, William drove himself to the hospital. He died on Jan. 8 of renal failure and pneumonia, according to his mother, who said the hospital treated her son with remdesivir.

In December 2020, life was going well for 40-year-old William Donald Judah. He was vice president of a family-owned janitorial company in Prattville, Alabama, the father of a 5-year-old son, stepfather to two other children and a softball coach.

"All the girls loved him," his mother, Donna Sue Harvell, told The Defender. "He was affectionately called 'Coach Will.'"

Harvell said she was supposed to see William right after Christmas 2020, but the plans were canceled when he tested positive for COVID-19 and began experiencing symptoms such as a loss of smell and taste.

"I would've dropped everything and run up there, but he said, 'No, there's nothing you can do,'" Harvell recalled.

In the coming days, William's symptoms worsened. On Jan. 2, 2021, he called his mother and told her he had to drive himself to Prattville Baptist Hospital. "They're going to go ahead and keep me," he said.

"He was going to the hospital to get some antibiotics, and they isolated him," Harvell said. By Jan. 8, 2021, he was dead — a victim, his mother said, of COVID-19 hospital protocols, which included the administration of remdesivir over five days.

"We miss him every day," said Harvell, who shared medical documentation with The Defender confirming her son's story and the medical treatment he received.

'That hospital failed him'

Harvell said her son was initially "upbeat and cheerful" after being admitted to Prattville Baptist, explaining that a nurse was "coming in now to give me an IV," Harvell recalled.

But when she told him that in her region of Florida, monoclonal antibodies were being administered to COVID-19 patients, he told her that nurses at his hospital told him they were administering "what they gave President Trump" — referring to remdesivir.

The hospital isolated William and prohibited his family from visiting, Harvell said. But in communications with his mother, William said he was experiencing difficulties.

"I had spoken to him and they were also giving him Toradol for pain," Harvell said. "He was in a lot of pain, and they said that he kept pulling the mask off, so they had the oxygen on too hard."

According to Harvell, a nurse told William the oxygen was "on too hard" because he was trying to pull the mask off of his face. "She was basically blaming him," Harvell said.

Still, William's outlook initially looked good, based on tests conducted at the hospital.

"I received a text from his wife saying his blood tests were good," Harvell recalled. "They had unhooked the IV, they had taken him off fluids — he didn't need them anymore. His blood count looked good."

Harvell said William was told "he should be doing well in a couple of days." That was 36 hours before he died.

"By Jan. 6, he indicated that he wasn't getting any better and he might need to be moved," Harvell said, referring to a text message William sent his family that day.

By this point, William was diagnosed with pneumonia. But Harvell learned her son was not receiving appropriate treatment for it at the hospital. Instead, they were still giving him remdesivir.

"I asked, 'Are they giving you an antibiotic?' He said no, and he said, 'They're watching me for blood clots.' Now, why would they watch him for blood clots with a respiratory infection? I said, 'Are they giving you a blood thinner? Are they giving you Plavix or aspirin?' He said no [and that] they said, 'There's something might be wrong with my liver.'"

"This is a side effect of remdesivir," Harvell said.

According to Harvell, "The next day, [the hospital] drugged him, they put him on a ventilator, and he passed." But when she tried to find out more information from the hospital, staff initially only told her they had taken him off fluids.

She said he coded twice and they were able to bring him back. But the third time they were "busy" with other patients and just could not bring him back. "They were just too busy," Harvell said.

"He drove there and left in a body bag, and my first words were, 'What happened?' That hospital failed him. We were expecting him to come home. They had just taken the IV out," Harvell said.

Family kept in the dark about renal failure

It took three weeks for the hospital to release William's death certificate, Harvell said, and the release required the assistance of the funeral home. When finally released, the death certificate listed William's causes of death as COVID-19, pneumonia and renal failure.

"I did not know about the renal failure until I received the death certificate," Harvell said. Other family members, including William's wife, also were kept in the dark, according to Harvell.

Harvell said the hospital did not receive informed consent from William or his family before administering remdesivir. Instead, Harvell alleges hospital staff did not tell William he was suffering from renal failure.

She said:

> "He had pneumonia. He should have been given an antibiotic for pneumonia. If they were watching him for blood clots, why wasn't he on a blood thinner? … And he not once mentioned [renal failure], so I don't even think he knew that he was in renal failure because he would've told me. He would've told his wife. He would've told somebody. He would've told his dad."

According to Harvell, hospital staff did not offer William alternative COVID-19 treatments, such as ivermectin.

She noted that William was unvaccinated, but that likely didn't play a role in the treatment he received at the hospital, because in early January 2021, COVID-19 vaccines were not yet being administered to his age group.

"I've had COVID twice. My husband is 77. He's had COVID twice. If anything, we would be the ones to pass away. But we didn't go to the hospital. We didn't take remdesivir. I took ivermectin and we're fine," Harvell said.

"If William would've stayed out of the hospital, he most likely would've lived," she added.

'Your story might be somebody else's healing path'

"The worst thing that could ever happen to anybody is losing a child," Harvell said. "I feel bad because [his son] Liam has to grow up without a dad, and William was the best dad … He was a family man. He loved his family."

Harvell said that the pain of losing William drove her into action. She joined online COVID-19 support groups and became an activist for other victims of COVID-19 hospital protocols and vaccines.

"With the COVID grief groups, we were communicating, and it was like they knew what I was talking about. They didn't argue with me and say, 'Oh, it's just part of it.' They would say, 'That happened to my husband too, or my daughter too, or my son too,'" she said.

"That's how we came up with those 25 commonalities," Harvell added, referring to a list of 25 COVID Protocol Commonalities in the treatment received by unvaccinated COVID-19 patients in hospitals.

The list was developed by the FormerFeds Group Freedom Foundation, a group advocating on behalf of COVID-19 hospital protocol victims and their families.

"The 25 commonalities are just an eye opener and have encouraged me to go out and educate other people," Harvell said. "I have people that come in my business and almost daily, I tell them about ivermectin, I tell them about remdesivir."

Harvell said many people she's spoken with, at her business or in online support groups, have shared similar stories involving their family members.

"I cannot tell you how many local mothers who have lost sons have contacted me, or even when their son was in the hospital, they would contact me and say, 'What was that drug that they gave your son?'" Harvell said.

Through her involvement with FormerFeds, Harvell is helping to raise money, through a cookbook, "Home-Cooked Memories: From Our Hearts to your Table," containing recipes submitted by family members of COVID-19 hospital protocol victims and a stainless steel Medic-Alert bracelet that allows people to disclose they are allergic to remdesivir, fentanyl and other drugs.

FormerFeds is also involved in a class-action lawsuit against remdesivir distributor Gilead.

Harvell had some words of advice for others who may be enduring experiences similar to hers regarding the loss or injury of a family member due to the COVID-19 hospital protocols or vaccines.

"Reach out to other people," she said. "There are groups out there, there are people out there that understand, that are supportive, that will pray for you, that will listen to you, that will not judge you," she said.

"Being active and telling people what happened is a healing process too," Harvell added. "It will help you heal. Your story might be somebody else's healing path."

I also live in Alabama, and precisely the same thing happened to my elderly aunt and uncle in January 2021. They were even told that they would be receiving "the same medication as President Trump." Placed on ventilators, they died in a matter of days. Had they toughed it out at home, it's at least possible that they would still be alive today...but they trusted their family physician and hospital personnel, and their trust was repaid with death. (It bears repeating that the alleged COVID virus was never isolated in a laboratory. There is literally no proof that it exists. My elderly relatives had a bad case of the flu: nothing more.)

The medical community was following a very specific protocol during the COVID era, right down to the verbal reassurance that they were instructed to give patients. They must be held accountable for what they did.

Please stop with that "never been isolated." I'm a long hauler from the march 2020 mandate plandemic era, and a nurse who worked the 'frontline' for 25 years. Alabama, New Jersey, Oregon....doesn't matter. This was a PLAN to neglect patients, or administer malpractice. I'm sorry to hear about your family. I was in a horrid state, and perhaps it wasn't "isolated" because this cocktail was filled with crap ranging from hiv to parasites. I was on everything under the sun when I finally found outside help. We were treating this with out an issue with steroid, antihistamines, etc before it had a name, and the mandates. Horror scene. I was in the ER 6 times and they refused to admit me, stroke and seizures, concussions from passing out and all....then, month 4, after finally testing negative, the damage was already done. For the post-injection/shot people to have the same symptoms as we the infected of the early era, it was made, it's a thing, it's real and while it was a homicidal scam, it wasn't 'nothing.'

Until you accept that nothing called Sars-Co2 was ever isolated you will never move to understanding what was is the nature of disease. Germ theory provides an easy way to control populations. First by telling people they are victims, second, by providing a (false) treatment for alleged germ of the day that only pharma can provide, it allows for the control of people's movements, where they can work, who they can associate with. Without your "papers", aka proof of vaccination, or negative fraudulent test, you are no longer a free citizen. All you know is that some people, including you, got sick. You want to blame the virus that they told exists, without proof. I have damage to my lawn. Must be unicorn hooves dancing on it at night. No other explanation can be possible. Why doesn't any country produce proof of the alleged virus? So far 220 countries all say they have no proof of any isolated virus, including the CDC.

The alleged virus was used to justify the shutdown of businesses, schools and churches. People died of cancer and heart disease because they were told to stay indoors. Whole segments of human civilization ground to a halt. If the "virus" was significant enough to warrant such draconian measures, its existence should have been conclusively proven.

But it wasn't. Why? Why couldn't Science™ demonstrate that the virus actually exists?

"Please stop with that "never been isolated."" that is correct according to facts I have read, why should he stop it ? Please improve my understanding if I got that wrong. And yes I do think that something existed that made people sick, like I got sick.

Did you take the shot ? You sound injection injured. There is no long haul covid. There is long haul vaccine side effects, and after finding out some of the shots had SV 40 cancer causing DNA in them, we also find out they have 100 % of N1-methyl-pseudouridine (m1Ψ) which also promotes cancer. We gonna blame the flu, for the cancers too ? Just so people can beLIEve that they made the right decision, rather than the stupid decision ?

And yes, stupid is the right adjective. After the century lies of profit over food, profit over health, profit over public safety, only a fool trust corporate owned governments and media lies.

I lost both of my twin brothers in hospitals in Southern CA in January and February of 2021. They were only 61. At the time we were not aware of the dangerous hospital protocol of Remdesivir and Ventilators. They both were given this failed ebola drug and put on ventilators. Both had organ failure and taken off life support. One brother died completely alone. His wife and children were not allowed in the room. I can not believe that 3 years later this is still hospital protocol for Covid 19. I would also like to add that they had visited insta cares several times before being hospitalized and sent home with NO early treatment and told to go to the hospital when they could no longer breathe. This is what they did and it killed them both!

This is how one of my family died at the same hospital that is being sued by the Schara family for the loss of Grace Schara. The hospital is St. Elizabeth's in Appleton, WI. I had operations there as a child, and one of my children was born there. We used to trust our hospitals when they were affiliated with religious organizations. Now they're bought out by evil conglomerate companies that don't give a fig about the patients. (In this case, "Ascension".) Our loss also left holes in many hearts.

They diagnose patients who are ill and their bodies detoxing (from lack of vit. D, nutritional deficiencies, lifestyle, chemtrails, 5G, poor diet etc.) with a mythical, never isolated, invisible enemy (virus) lurking in nature and people go in a panic mode. Instead of taking rest and supporting their natural detox mechanisms they rely on chemicals produced by the most criminal industry ever. They are then killed by these chemical poisons called 'medicine'.

I didn't have covid, but the hospital said I did. I still do not know what I had. But I know what they did. My husband told them that I will only accept anti bodies if it was covid. I could not talk or see as I had past out before I got to the hospital. My husband told them not to give me anything but the anti bodies and they said fine. He was told to go home and that they would do all that they could. Well they didn't give me the anti bodies they gave me Remdezivir. I found this out three days later. I told them I told my husband that I wanted the Anti bodies. They said no this is better. I could not stop them even though I had tired. The told me to use the portapotty which I couldn't even stand up but I was fighting for my life. Finally when I could stand to go and I was done I fell to the floor and woke up on the floor. They had not picked me up, they was worried about the pee on the floor. They did not even clean me, they just put me in bed and worried about the floor.
I had a big bruise on my thigh from that. I then told my husband to come and pick me up. He came but they would not let him near me. So I told them to get the doctor. The doctor if he was one, I told him I want to leave. He said maybe tomorrow but we have to give you more

There's an entire book about this subject. It's been #1 in numerous nursing categories on Amazon since it launched in December.

It explains the systematic nature of these deaths and includes in-depth interview with nurses and other medical personnel and the most up-to-date version of financial analysis by A.J. DePriest, referenced in this article.

It's called "What the Nurses Saw". Your readers would probably appreciate knowing about it.

I remember being in an auto vehicle accident September 2020. EMTs asked if I wanted to go to the hospital. I told them, 'absolutely not! ‘That hospital failed him’

The hospital was the client of the government Prep Act protocol. 20% pad on the hospital bill for administering Remdesivir. Some $30,000 for administering a ventilator. Liability indemnity for complying with Prep Act. Hospitals knew where the bread was buttered. That hospital did not fail the government. Potential patients did not understand that, as they were kept uninformed by the mainstream media.

To truly understand why Fauci should be in prison for life for directing that every U.S. hospital's Covid-19 protocol use Remdesivir as the main drug, one has to understand that Remdesivir was pulled from an Ebola drug trial which Fauci was involved in, because Remdesivir killed fifty-three percent of the trial subjects. To come to this understanding, please view the following interview of Dr. Brian Ardis by Dr. Reiner Fuellmich:

This happened to my cousin's husband. He got Covid and then was getting over it, but developed pneumonia and was worsening by the day. His doctor refused to see him and would only do telemedicine. My cousin (I'll call him Ed) told the doctor that he KNEW he had pneumonia. Instead of prescribing ANYTHING, they told him if it got worse to go to the hospital. He knew what that meant. The doctor hung up. Another family member, called the doctor back and TOLD him (didn't ask, but told the Dr.) to give him meds... or else.
So the Dr. wrote a couple of prescriptions and a family member drove Ed to the pharmacy.... within 24 hours he started to improve and then consistently improved. It took a couple of weeks, but he recovered.
So sorry for the family in the story above and all those who lost loved ones, unnecessarily.

I was in the hospital in December for Covid. I wish I hadn’t gone. It affected my stomach and made me have a very high heart rate. They had me on IV fluids and the nurse told me that the emergency dr was only letting me get an inch of fluid an hour and that wasn’t going to do me any good. I didn’t like that dr when I met her and I think she was trying to make me sicker. I started drinking a lot of water. The only thing that they gave me for my stomach was 1 Imodium and I was there 3 days. The food was awful. It smelled like _. If it wasn’t for pudding, applesauce and potato chips I would have starved to death. My heart rate went up because I was dehydrated and they put me on metoprolol to slow it down. Don’t go to the hospital for Covid if you can keep from it. When I was there for another reason, they treated me great. Covid patients are treated like crap.
